

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

Happy New Year!

I've enjoyed hearing about your WORDS for 2014. The spirit coming from your feedback on yesterday's blog has been energizing and inspiring.

Here are some more thoughts on ONE WORD from Christine Kane's blog:

"Let's say you are one of the many people who would normally choose "Get Organized." You look around to see clutter all over your life. You're tired of the chaos. So, you think, "I need to get organized. That should be my Resolution this year."

But then you read this blog. You decide to try it.

You sit with your clutter. You spend a few days pondering words that will inspire you. You realize in an "Ah-Ha!" moment that you tend to cling to lots of things. You're scared to let go. So you choose the word "Release" because it inspires you in a bigger way than "Get organized."

So, every time you approach your clutter you remind yourself of that word. "Release," you say softly. You start to let the clutter go. Eventually, you realize that you're still holding on to lots more than just physical clutter. You realize that you hold onto resentment at old relationships. "Release," you remind yourself. You realize that holding on is affecting your diet and health. "Release" applies to some of the extra weight you've gained as well. Throughout the year, you can see clearly how much you hold on. "Release" is your touchstone. It grows you throughout the year. It becomes your guiding force, not your harsh standard.

Your clutter became your teacher simply because you shifted your intent towards it. This wouldn't have happened if you'd opted only to "Get Organized."

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

What word to choose?

Many people know immediately which word resonates with them. For others, a little contemplation is required.

I've compiled a list of possible words below. As you read through them, see if one stands out for you."

Compassion

Delight

Generosity

Effortlessness

Wealth

Gratitude

Abundance

Creativity

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

Willingness

Change

Growth

Freedom

Mastery

Kindness

Health

Presence

Acceptance

Courage

Confidence

Self-Love

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

Action

Forgiveness

Forgive

Release

Trust

Knowing

Patience

Friendship

Fun

Grace

Laughter

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

Love

Expansion

Exploration

Adventure

Openness

Discipline

Awe

Awareness

Risk

Gentleness

Choice

Spirit

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

Prayerfulness

Power

Allow

Artfulness

Attention

Beauty

Joy

Focus

Ritual

Heal

Order

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

Clarity

Pioneer

Peace

Laziness

No

Yes

Deliberateness

Commitment

Savor

Integrity

Listen

This is a great list. Is there anything here that resonates with you? How will you inspire yourself to keep your word in the forefront of your busy life? If you're into Pinterest (I know, I know another potential social media obsession risk), you might want to periodically search your word there for inspiration and motivation. Or, if you're into journaling, it's a great place to check in with yourself on your word.

One Word Ideas

Written by Gayle Nobel

Wednesday, 01 January 2014 13:25 - Last Updated Wednesday, 01 January 2014 20:48

I challenge you to take this word and run with it all the way to the end of 2014.

Here's my first pin for DARE....

